

Dendup Tshering

Analytical-chemist

Dendup Tshering (Mr) is a PhD student at the School of Earth Sciences, The Ohio State University (OSU) in Columbus, United States of America (USA). Currently, he is working on the streams' response to the permafrost thawing and glacier melting in McMurdo Dry Valleys, Antarctica with the Polar Environment Research Group and McMurdo Dry Valleys Long Term Ecological Research (MCM LTER) group funded by the National Science Foundation (NSF), USA. Tshering has extensive teaching experience, having worked as a lecturer in the Department of Environmental Science at Sherubtse College, Royal University of Bhutan (RUB for more than 15 years. His notable projects include investigations into water quality, melt water contributions to the rivers, the environmental impacts of hydropower plants, and the assessment of river and spring ecosystems in Bhutan. Tshering has been involved in several key roles at Sherubtse College, including serving as a coordinator for various research and academic committees; Dean of Research & Industrial Linkages, and leading considerable international and national research projects.

Email address - dendup608@gmail.com

Water Research Bhutan